

European Academy of Dermatology and Venereology

Dear colleagues,

As a professional European organisation of dermatologists-venereologists, the European Academy of Dermatology and Venereology is committed to scientific collaboration and to the free exchange of ideas and knowledge through dialogue and mutual respect.

We witness with profound sadness and concern the situation in Ukraine as it is currently unfolding and we are aware of the feelings of despair, distress and fear that too many are experiencing. We see no place for violence or war.

The EADV stands together to our fellow dermatologists-venereologists affected by this conflict and extends its heartfelt support to healthcare professionals, patients and civilians widely. We remain committed in supporting our colleagues and those in need at this difficult time.

We call on international organisations to protect all those affected by this humanitarian disaster and urge members of our community to consider supporting relief efforts organised in their own countries.

We sincerely hope for a rapid and peaceful resolution of this conflict in order to prevent further loss of human life and avoid human suffering.

EADV President

Professor Alexander Stratigos

A handwritten signature in blue ink, appearing to read 'A Stratigos', written in a cursive style.

EADV Secretary General

Professor Camern Salavastru

A handwritten signature in blue ink, appearing to read 'CS', written in a cursive style.